Madison, Salvation Army to offer relief from cold

Late-Breaking

Salvation Army to open warming center if temperature below 10 degrees by 5 p.m.

By MAGGIE HILLERY
Courier staff Writer

The City of Madison extended its temporary warming shelter for homeless through Monday evening as snow and a low temperature of 18 were predicted to usher in winter weather.

It was not scheduled to be open beyond Monday night. A meeting Tuesday among city, county, community agencies and representatives of The Salvation Army will discuss the next step.

The city opened the Comfort Station on West Main Street Friday after it was learned The Salvation Army would not be opening its overnight warming shelter when the temperature reached 32 degrees during the day, which the Army has done for the last two years.

After a meeting Friday afternoon among Jefferson County's emergency management agency director, Troy Morgan, and Madison Mayor Bob Courtney and several city managers, the Comfort Station became the quickest and most obvious temporary shelter.

"Utilizing the city's comfort station to provide after-hours emergency shelter was our best course of action on such a short notice for a variety of reasons," Courtney said. "While I completely understand the various viewpoints on this matter, protecting life was paramount, and, approximately seven individuals have taken advantage of the emergency shelter for warmth as freezing temperatures enterered our area."

By midday Saturday, the city announced the Comfort Station would remain open as a shelter from 10 p.m. to 8 a.m. through Monday night.

"Making the comfort station available provides critical warmth for those in need. While this is just a temporary solution, I ask for the community's support in providing this resource and thank you in advance for helping us help others," Courtney said Saturday when the announcement was made.

After several years of providing the overnight warming stations, the Salvation Army found itself in a position where it is unable to do so right now.

However, just after 3 p.m. on Monday, the Salvation Army issued a news release saying it will now open its warming center if temperatures drop to 10 degrees or less by 5 p.m.

"We are not equipped to operate a regular shelter on a regular basis," the release said. "When the weather becomes dangerous to be outside we will operate an emergency shelter with emergency guidelines (one room with two supervisors), dependent upon having a minimum of two adult volunteers available to supervise the warming area.

"Due to lack of sustainable funding, volunteer and personnel resources, and an adequate facility, The Salvation Army must change how the winter warming center will operate in the winter of 2019-2020."

In addition, the release said, "we will continue to serve breakfast and lunch at The Salvation Army through

Winter storm on way

Slick spots on roadways and some accumulation of snowfall were expected by Tuesday as the region braced for the first winter snowfall of the season.

Jefferson County Indiana Emergency Management Agency issued a winter weather advisory through Tuesday morning when about an inch of snowfall was expected to fall locally bringing a threat of potentially hazardous driving conditions as a strong cold front moves into the region.

INDOT scheduled yellow snowplow trucks to start 12-hour shifts on roads in the Southeast District area with the Madison subdistrict Monday afternoon.

Temps in the teens to low 20s with wind chills dipping to from 5 to 15 degrees above zero forecast with highs in the upper 20s to mid-30s.

Southwestern gets $200K grant for locks, keys

By COLLIN OVERTON
Courier staff report

Southwestern Schools has received a $200,015 safety grant from the U.S. Justice Department to install door locks and security hardware throughout the campus.

"We've not had anything that kind of precipitated it, it's just been an issue that we've been needing to address for a while," Superintendent Jeff Bates said.

Classroom security is the focal point, Bates said.

Under the new system, funded through the 2019 COPS Office School Violence Prevention Program, any teacher with a key can lock any door from the inside in the event of an emergency. Teachers now can only lock doors from the outside if they have the key specific to that door, he said.

The grant covers three-fourths of the overall project cost, $266,687, of which Southwestern will pay the rest. Most of the remaining $66,000 will come from the district's operations fund, Bates said.

"Safety is our number one concern," Bates said. "We've always been very safety conscious and we will continue to be, and any time we can do things to make our students and our staff safer we will certainly look at it and try to do what we can."

The grant will cover the replacement of nearly 450 classroom lock sets with hardware capable of being key-locked from the interior of the classroom. It also allows the district to equip 130 doors with replacement cylinders keyed on the new system and eliminate keyed access to 34 entry doors, so that students, staff and visitors are going through primary entrances, said middle school principal and lead safety specialist Jason Watson.

Bates said the project is "totally precautionary."

Boisterous Food Day broadens taste buds of Batesville kids

By DEBBIE BLANK
Batesville Herald-Tribune

For seven years, students at Batesville primary and intermediate schools have been enticed to try under-the-radar vegetables, one year at a time.

Sweet potatoes kicked off the Indiana Department of Education program, followed by turnips, kale, delicata squash, brussels sprouts, radishes and — two flavors for 2019! — herbs and yogurt.

Margaret Mary Health community dietitian Kathy Cooley, RD, CDE, reports, "If you talk to some of the kids in the older grades, they can name off many of them for you. The idea of celebrating one food and really having fun with it truly sticks."

When Food Day happened at BIS Oct. 29, kids in high spirits were everywhere midday. Some were eating pesto pasta (please see recipes in box) in the cafeteria, while others were floating between 10 stations. They were sniffing herbs, lifting hay bales, tasting yogurt, getting blood pressures checked, taking Food Gnome photos, assessing how much sugar is in drinks and learning about how important hand washing is in the lobby. Some were creating cards for military service members in the art room. Others were outside playing a silly farmers vs. robbers game and flag football.

Kids were watching a short Food Day video created ahead of time by MMH marketing specialist Adam Fischmer. It can be viewed at https://bit.ly/2WJFlmX. He also was shooting the Food Day action for a later video.

Because principal Dana Cassidy had applied to be a Fuel Up to Play 60 School of the Week, some activities were part of the BIS Wellness Bazaar. Play 60 is a program sponsored by the American Dairy Association and Indianapolis Colts.

BPS students and staff marked Food Day Oct. 30 with the same recipe and centerpieces.

These special days were organized by the MMH Nutrition Services Department, BIS and BPS school administrators and cafeteria managers and school garden teachers.

The dietitian tells how the program rolls out each year: "It's the responsibility of the Indiana Department of Education Farm to School team to pick the food of the year and develop a tool kit to help schools all over the state celebrate Food Day." Its purpose "is to celebrate nourishing, locally-produced foods. By focusing on a single food, we can really have fun, but still teach some important lessons: eating a wide variety of fruits and vegetables, locally-grown food can taste better and helps support our local farmers, and the importance of being willing to try new foods."

Any other schools interested in participating in Food Day 2020 should contact Cooley at 812-933-5267.

There are qualifications for the chosen vegetable. Besides being healthy, it must be able to be grown in a school garden so students can see progress from seed (or seedling) to harvest, and cafeteria managers must be able to source it from local farms. Cooley observes, "It is always a fall crop because that is what is available in October. And we try to pick something that may be a little unusual, so it gives the students a chance to try something new."

Once herbs were chosen as the food of the year, a variety were planted in all Batesville public school gardens, plus the one at St. Louis School.

She explains yogurt also is in the spotlight because the dairy council supported the program this year.

"Each year we have a tasting day in September. We pick two recipes featuring the food of the year. The kids taste a sample and vote which one they would like served for Food Day." Unbelievably, the dietitians were able to come up with a recipe that featured both foods, a yogurt-based ranch dressing with fresh herbs. So the sampling contest was ranch dressing vs. basil pesto pasta.

"The pesto pasta won!"

She notes, "We made a nut-free pesto because of nut allergies in the schools and because pine nuts are so pricey. We think this tasted just as good!"

Reflecting back on the Food Days, Cooley sums up, "We have had a lot of fun."

"Each year it seems like there are great lessons we learn. This year we learned that you need a lot of fresh basil to make pesto, and that fresh basil is pretty expensive. We purchased it from Michaela Farm for the tasting days." The schools received a discount, but still it was more than cafeteria managers were accustomed to spending. "We know that it is very easy to grow in the school gardens and the cafeteria managers know that they can make it and freeze it for later use. So hopefully we can get the gardens to grow enough basil for the cafeteria to make enough pesto to use a couple times throughout the year."

Cooley continues, "The second fun thing that I learned is how to plant herbs from cuttings, like farmer Daniel (Wilds, the Michael Farm manager) talks about in the video. We decided to try that technique for the centerpieces. Mary Jo Beck has a beautiful herb garden and she kept a few of her herbs alive for us to cut and use for decoration. Originally we were just going to put them in vases on the tables, but after seeing the video, we were inspired to try to plant the cuttings and see if we could get them to grow. We planted sage, thyme, flat leaf parsley and basil. So far they are all still alive.

"We have spread them around with the idea if people can keep them watered until Thanksgiving, they will have fresh herbs to include in their holiday meal."

What was the consensus about these two foods of the year? She answers, "Feedback has been the same every year: About 30% loved it, 30% were willing to try (yogurt and herbs) and ate part of their servings and 30% said they didn't like it. But I can say that each year, the students seem more and more willing to try because we come every year and talk about it.

"We hope that families will try our recipes at home. Sometimes children have to be exposed to a new food up to seven times before they like it. So we encourage families to increase the variety of foods served in their homes. Maybe pesto won't be everyone's favorite," but it might just become a fresh family treat.

The dietitian urges parents to invite children into the kitchen: "Sometimes if they help make something, they will be more willing to try" eating it.

TWO HEALTHY RECIPIES

Nut-free Pesto

2 cups fresh basil leaves
1-3 large cloves diced garlic
zest and juice of 1 lemon
3/4 cup Parmesan cheese, preferably grated
1/4 to 1/3 cup extra virgin olive oil
1/4 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
3/4 teaspoon sea salt

Add the fresh basil, diced garlic, lemon zest and Parmesan cheese to the bowl of a large food processor. Process at medium speed until it starts to resemble a paste, about 60-90 seconds. If you do not have a food processor, you can use a mortar and pestle to combine the ingredients.

Add half of the fresh lemon juice and 1/4 cup olive oil. Process until the mixture is evenly combined. Taste and add more lemon juice based on your personal preference. Add more olive oil if you would like the pesto to be thinner. Process again until just combined.

Add the salt and pepper. Process, taste and add more if desired.

Store in the refrigerator. If you don't plan to use all pesto within two weeks, it freezes beautifully.

Yield: 1 cup.

Homemade Ranch Dressing

2/3 cup milk or buttermilk
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1/3 cup plain yogurt
1/3 cup mayonnaise
1 teaspoon onion powder
3/4 teaspoon garlic powder
1/8 teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon fresh chives or 1 teaspoon dried
1 tablespoon fresh dill or 1 teaspoon dried
1 tablespoon fresh parsley or 1 teaspoon dried
1/4 teaspoon salt

Combine milk and lemon juice in a mixing bowl and let sit 10 minutes. Blend yogurt into milk mixture and let sit 5 minutes, then mix in all other ingredients. Store in the refrigerator.

Serves 10 with serving sizes of 2 tablespoons.

McConnell receives praise in visit to North American Stainless

By COLLIN OVERTON
Courier staff writer

Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell made an appearance at North American Stainless (NAS) in Ghent, Kentucky, Monday morning where he was lauded for passing a U.S.-Spain tax treaty that saves the company $35 million this year.

McConnell (R-Kentucky) spoke to employees of the Spanish-owned steel mill for about four minutes, touching on how he muscled the treaty through the Senate, representing middle America and the "food fight" atmosphere between members of Congress in Washington.

"This is a good example of how the right kind of government policy can make an important contribution to individuals," McConnell said.

After speaking, NAS President Cris Fuentes gave the majority leader an engraved stainless steel plate thanking him for helping pass the treaty.

While in Ghent, reporters asked McConnell for his take on last week's election in Kentucky where incumbent Republican Gov. Matt Bevin was unseated by Democratic challenger Andy Beshear, an outcome that is still being contested by Bevin.

McConnell said Bevin "had a good four years," but that a review of Bevin's narrow re-election defeat is unlikely to change the outcome.

Bevin trailed Beshear by about 5,000 votes in the Nov. 5 election. A re-canvass of votes is scheduled Thursday.

McConnell said he's "sorry Matt came up short."

He says the re-canvass is unlikely to change the election results, and that "barring a dramatic reversal on the re-canvass, we'll have a new governor in three weeks."

Bevin has cited voting irregularities in the governor's race but has not provided evidence.

Alternative crops of hemp and sorghum help Seymour farmer

By JORDAN RICHART
(Seymour) Tribune

This year has certainly been a different one for local farmers, who battled unprecedented conditions during spring planting.

The unusual spring also led to a diverse harvest for one local farmer.

Brian Thompson has typically raised corn and soybeans, but this year, in addition to those crops, he has grown and harvested hemp and grain sorghum.

Thompson had planned well ahead of the 2019 planting season that he would raise hemp, but a soggy spring with persistent rains forced him to think outside the box by planting grain sorghum, also known as milo.

The grain is primarily used for birdseed, Thompson said, but has some of the same uses as corn. In fact, the sorghum plant looks like a smaller stalk of corn with a large head of seeds on the top.

The crop has drawn a lot of questions from those who are curious about it, Thompson said.

"My wife, Karla, and I have been stopped in the grocery store by people who want to know what it is and what it's used for," he said with a laugh while operating a combine to harvest the crop off of State Road 11. "Everyone calls it funny-looking corn."

Even though Thompson planted it this year, sorghum does not represent a large part of his acreage, as he planted it in about 300 of the 3,000 acres he farms. He said he last planted the crop about 10 years ago and first planted it in the 1990s.

Thompson said he decided to plant the crop after the wet spring complicated corn planting.

By the time the soil dried well enough to be worked again, it was too late to plant corn, he said. Thompson was left with the choice to plant beans, plant grain sorghum or leave some fields bare.

Leaving the fields bare was not an option, he said, and he decided to go with the grain sorghum because soybean prices were depressed due to the trade conflict.

"I'm not really good at walking away and saying, 'You win,' and I don't give up very easy," Thompson said. "The market tells us what to do. It's a lot like corn and is priced like corn. It's kind of an emergency crop."

Thompson said other farmers have planted the crop, which has attracted a lot of birds to one of his fields.

The birds usually don't bother other crops, but Thompson estimates they have taken five to 10 bushels an acre off of one field, which adds up.

"They found this and thought it was Christmas," he said with a laugh.

Oddly enough, Thompson has planted about 200 acres of sorghum in Hamilton Township, where the birds haven't bothered it.

"They just haven't found it yet," he said.

Thompson wrapped up the hemp harvest a few weeks ago. He and his son, Ben, along with Adam Myers and Don Shoemaker planted about 15 acres of the crop in early June. They were only ones in the county selected to grow hemp this year.

It will be used to make cannabidiol, or CBD oil, by Thrive Well LLC, a division of Kocolene.

The company's position in the market will be as a CBD processor, extracting the cannabidiol from locally grown hemp and selling it to other businesses to produce CBD products. The oil may be used in consumable oils, pills and gummies, bath bombs, topical ointments, bottled water and even pet products.

In June, the city of Seymour gave Kocolene a $1.5 million tax break on an investment in manufacturing equipment and technology, including extractors, purifiers, distillers and more.

As demand in the state and nationwide continues to rise for the product, Kocolene has positioned itself as one of Indiana's first processors of CBD oil.

The product has been said to alleviate inflammation, pain, anxiety, insomnia and seizures and can be used for a host of other conditions without the dangers of addiction.

Thompson said the hemp harvest was completed manually. The group tried mechanic harvesting with a silage chopper and tried a tobacco harvester with adaptions but found manual was better.

So that meant crews had to cut the seven acres of plants and load them into a wagon to be delivered. There were between 1,600 and 1,800 plants per acre, Thompson estimated.

"There were quite a few plants," he said. "We worked every morning for a few weeks where we'd cut the plants and deliver them to Thrive Well."

The group used various genetic groups of plant to see which ones would grow better in Jackson County. That led to a variety in sizes and conditions.

"Some were small, others were like a Christmas tree," he said. "Overall, production seemed good, and the plants looked good and healthy."

Thompson said he enjoyed the first year of learning and interacting with the team at Kocolene. He said he feels he used different skills that made him better overall and looks forward to the second year of production.

"Now, we have a base of knowledge, and we know what to do moving forward," he said. "It's exciting and interesting, and it feels better knowing something about it rather than this time last year where I didn't know much at all."

He had most recently worked for Taco Bell in food prep for about five years. Rodney was diagnosed three years ago with melanoma and fought a courageous battle against the disease. Rodney died on Friday, November 8, 2019, at 3:45 a.m. at his parents' home near Madison, Indiana with them at his side.

We will also have a rack of free coats set up all winter, or as long as donations last, in our dining room where clients can pick out a coat, as needed, starting mid-November."

If the temperature is 32 degrees by 5 p.m., the release said, clients can come into the building at Main and Walnut during business hours to receive emergency winter gear if needed. "We will offer clients a blanket, hat, gloves, and warm layers based on funding and donations. The Salvation Army will continue to seek resources to provide cold weather gear."

If the temperature is 15 degrees by 5 p.m., the Army will open its feeding program to offer dinner so clients can go there to have a hot meal between 5:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. inside the dining room.

"As homelessness is a community problem, The Salvation Army is interested in partnering with our community to generate solutions to this difficult problem," the release said. "The Salvation Army cannot singularly solve this problem in either the short- or long-term. We understand that this is not a permanent solution to this ongoing issue in our community. The Salvation Army will continue to work together with our city government and other agencies to find an answer to help our community best help those in need. May God give us all the wisdom and compassion to address this very difficult situation."

Lt. Justin Hartley, who heads the Salvation Army office here, said the organization still is working with its headquarters to set up in the future for emergency shelter from the cold, but a plan is not ready now and he does not know when it might be.

Hanover dominates Rose to win crown

By ROB LAFARY

sports@madisoncourier.com

TERRE HAUTE — Hanover lived up to its status as preseason favorite by capturing the Heartland Collegiate Athletic Conference football title and the league's automatic bid to the NCAA Playoffs with a 42-13 rout over Rose-Hulman on Saturday.

The win marks Hanover's fourth outright HCAC crown in school history and back-to-back titles for the first time since the 2002 and 2003 seasons. It makes the Panthers (8-1, 6-0 HCAC) two games up in the league with one game to play.

"It has been a crazy ride," Hanover head coach Matt Theobald said. "This is just such a great group and they make our job as coaches so much easier. I'm very happy with how we came out and played and we just played really well."

Rose-Hulman (6-3, 5-2 HCAC) entered the day in second place as the lone HCAC team with one loss, and the stage was set for a winner-take-all conference championship showdown. But after the two teams battled early, the Panthers never allowed the Fightin' Engineers a chance to stay within striking distance and broke free over the final three quarters to run away with a dominant win.

Hanover struck on its first drive of the game, using a 6-yard touchdown pass from Noah Wezensky to Taylor Blestein and an extra point by Austin Steurer to go up 7-0 but Rose cut the deficit to 7-6 after a Wezensky interception led to a 24-yard run by Garrett Wight. The score remained there until 8:56 left in the second quarter when the Panthers broke the virtual stalemate on offense in a big way,

Running back Shawn Coane, who had struggled to shake Rose's defensive line in the first quarter, found daylight on three separate occasions to close out the first half.

The junior scored three touchdowns — two on the ground and one by air — capped by a 2-yard run with only 25 seconds left before halftime. All three scores were followed by a successful extra point from the leg of Steurer and Hanover's halftime lead was at 28-6.

"We really captured the momentum there in the second quarter," Theobald said. "It was great for our guys to go in at halftime with that big of a lead. Rose did some things on defense early that we weren't expecting but we made some adjustments and our guys stepped up. We were able to control the game from there and everybody

Panthers beat Rose in shootout to win title

By JORDAN BEAR
Special to the Courier

Josh Hughes' goal in the penalty kick shootout capped an improbable comeback and lifted Hanover to a 2-1 victory over Rose-Hulman in the championship game of the Heartland Collegiate Athletic Conference men's soccer tournament Saturday in Hanover.

Rose-Hulman found the back of the net in the 59th minute when Ryan Tarr took a pass from Eric Kirby on a free kick and slipped the ball past Hanover goalie Will Bedel to gIve the Engineers a 1-0 lead.

That changed when Hanover sophomore Patrick Rowe fired a shot in from about 20 yards to equalize the game at 1-1 with less than a minute to play and send the Hanover bench and crowd into a frenzy.

Rowe, who was named the tournament's most valuable player, said the goal gave Hanover all of the momentum heading into overtime.

"Rose-Hulman is a very organized team defensively and I knew in the final seconds they were just trying to hold on but once I scored it gave us the momentum we needed heading into overtime" Rowe, a huge smile across his face.

Hanover and Rose-Hulman played 20 minutes of overtime with neither team really having a serious chance to score. Still tied 1-1, the game was finally decided on a penalty kick shootout.

Carlos Schryver was the first to score for Hanover in the shootout and that was followed by a save by Bedel. Renato Yostsui scored on his kick but Rose-Hulman's Kirby found the net to pull within 2-1.

Rose then got a big stop from keeper Pascal Schlee and a goal from Andy June to even the shootout at 2-2. Nicholas Ash found the back of the net on his shot to put Hanover back on top followed by another incredible stop by Bedel to set up Hughes for the match-clincher.

Hughes calmly stepped up and scored on his shot giving Hanover the HCAC Championship, the Panthers' first since 2016.

"(Rowe) scored a big goal against Rose in the regular season and it was pretty exciting because we were on our heels in the second half but he stepped up and made a great shot," Hanover coach Matt Wilkerson said. "They're awesome they really are. They challenge each other every day and they demand a lot of each other. They're just an amazing group."

Hanover, now 12-5-2 on the season, earns the league's automatic berth to the NCAA Tournament, which begins on Saturday. The Panthers were to find out Monday where and against whom they will be playing.

Wilkerson had a short and simple message for his team heading into the NCAAs: "Let's go win some games."

BASKETBALL

Hopes high for Hanover this year

By ROB LAFARY
Courier Staff Writer
sports@madisoncourier.com

Hanover's women's and men's basketball programs each posted winning campaigns a season ago and that expectation remains heading into the 2019-20 season.

With both teams picked to finish second in the Heartland Collegiate Athletic Conference preseason polls, the Panthers have aspirations to repeat the successes of last year and strive for an HCAC title and an appearance in the NCAA Tournament.

Here is a look at both squads:

Hanover Women

Hanover finished 19-8 with a 14-4 mark in the HCAC last season but was bounced from the conference tournament by Rose-Hulman in the semifinals. Several key players return for head coach John Jones and expectations are high for his veteran group of Panthers.

"This group is as close as any group I've had," Jones said of his team. "We have a great group and early on have prepared hard for this season. We are still trying to figure some things out in terms of our depth but we have a solid starting five and I've been pleased with how our whole team has played in a couple scrimmages. Roles have changed a lot for our players but they have embraced it and have made the most out of it."

Of the five seniors, Alexis Nall highlights the group after averaging a double-double of 18.4 points per game and 10.5 rebounds per game during her junior season. Nall, tabbed as a preseason second-team All-American, ranked in the top 25 nationally last year in field goal percentage and double-doubles while also eclipsing the 1,000 career point mark at Hanover.

GIRLS BASKETBALL

Rebels open year with loss, victory

COURIER STAFF REPORT
sports@madisoncourier.com

Southwestern's girls basketball team opened the season with a win over Crothersville and a loss to Henryville over the weekend.

On Friday, the Rebels fell 44-36 loss at Henryville. Southwestern scored just five points in the second quarter to fall behind 23-12 and never recovered. Ellie Foley had 12 points and Bella Marcum scored 11 to lead the Rebels.

"I didn't feel like we came out ready to play like we should have with it being our first game. I was extremely disappointed in the results because I know we are better than what we showed. Definitely not the way we wanted to start out the season," Southwestern coach Devin Brierly said. "Despite our first half lull, I was proud of the way our kids fought back in the 2nd half. Unfortunately, we had just dug ourselves into a hole and waited too long to try and get out of it."

On Saturday, Southwestern rebounded to beat Crothersville 65-47 on the road. After falling behind 21-14 after the first quarter, the Rebels dominated the next three for the win.

"Tonight was, in my humble opinion, the best overall team effort and performance from a Southwestern girls basketball team that I have seen in a very long time. Everyone played a significant part in this victory," Brierly said. "This is the way Southwestern girls basketball should be and can be played. We have now set the bar — there are absolutely no excuses for not playing this way the rest of the year. The cool thing is, we still have much more room to grow and improve — we cannot be content with this."

Ellie Foley scored 20 points and Ashton Goode added 19 to lead the Rebels, while Bella Marcum and Trinity McLain scored nine points each.

"The entire team was fantastic tonight on both ends of the floor, but especially Ellie Foley and Ashton Goode on the offensive end," Brierly said. "Ellie took the game into her hands and took advantage of every scoring opportunity. She was much more aggressive tonight, which is what we've been asking of her. I'm especially proud of Ashton. I made some changes to the starting lineup before the game — Ashton could've folded — but she came off the bench and scored 19 for us. She looked like she had a confidence and strength about her that I've not seen. She needed this and her team needed her performance tonight. Can't forget about the rest of their supporting cast though who did all the little things people often overlook."

Southwestern, now 1-1 on the season, hosts Oldenburg on Friday in its home opener and hosts West Washington on Saturday.

CAM opens with easy 66-39 win

COURIER STAFF REPORT
sports@madisoncourier.com

Christian Academy of Madison opened its boys basketball season with an easy 66-39 win over Cornerstown Christian (Ky.) at home on Friday.

The Defenders played the game without sophomore point guard Clay Carter, who sprained an ankle in practice, but still had four players reach double figures in scoring. Luke Carter led CAM with 19 points, Chase Hopkins had 14, Jaxon Miller scored 13 and Trent Haggard had 11.

Now 1-0 on the season, Christian Academy heads to Knightstown on Friday to play a pair of games in the historic Hoosier Gym. The Defenders will face Horizon Christian at 5:30 p.m. and Calumet Christian at 7:30 p.m.

CAM returns home on Saturday to host Covington Latin.

WOMEN'S SOCCER

Hanover falls 1-0 to Rose-Hulman in championship game of HCAC

By DAVID CAMPBELL
Courier Staff Writer
dcampbell@madisoncourier.com

TERRE HAUTE — Hanover dominated the second half and spent the last 45 minutes of the game on Rose-Hulman's side of the field, but a goal late in the first half was all the Fightin' Engineers needed to pull out a 1-0 win in the Heartland Collegiate Athletic Conference women's soccer championship on Saturday.

Elle Ogden broke through a pack of defenders to fire a shot past Hanover goalie Amanda Carmosino in the 40th minute of the first half to put Rose on top 1-0.

Hanover did what it could in the second half to tie the game but to no avail.

"We lost to a good team. Rose-Hulman has made a habit of putting teams under a lot of pressure early in the game and I thought they did that to us over the entirety of the first half," Hanover coach Jim Watts said. "We made a few adjustments in the second half and I thought we played really well. We had all of the game in the second half but just couldn't find the equalizer."

Rose-Hulman (15-4-1), the tournament's No. 1 seed, spent the first half attacking the Hanover goal. That pressure allowed the Engineers to hold a 5-2 lead in shots at the break and of course led to a goal.

Hanover flipped the script in the second half and seemed poised to tie the game. Time after time the Panthers were able to work the ball down the field along the sidelines, but each time the Rose defenders were able to snuff out the attack, denying Hanover the cross passes it needed to put itself in position to score.

The result was that although Hanover outshot Rose-Hulman 5-2 in the second half, only two of the Panthers' seven attempts on the day were on goal.

"We had a hard time getting behind them. We had all of the play in the second half but we never created a lot of good scoring chances and we never got behind their defense," Watts said. "All of the credit goes to Rose-Hulman, they're a good team. There's a reason why they won the regular-season Heartland title as well."

Overall shots were tied 7-7 between the two schools with Rose holding a 5-2 advantage in shots on goal. The Engineers also had 10 corner kicks to eight by Hanover and five fouls to three for the Panthers.

Carmosino stopped four shots in goal for the Panthers while Katie Demert had two saves for the Engineers.

Rose-Hulman secures the HCAC's automatic berth to the NCAA Tournament with the win and will open postseason play on Saturday.

Hanover ends the season with an 11-6-2 record.

"We had a good year. We got back to the final which is kind of an expectation for our program, to play on the last day," Watts said. "It's going to be a long ride home today not getting the result."

The teams traded the first four sets before Earlham claimed the tie-breaker and won 25-18, 25-27, 25-23, 25-18, 18-16.

Adrianne Vance had a big game for the Panthers, recording 24 kills at the net. Hanover ends the season at 18-11 and as runner-up in the HCAC.

HC falls at Franklin

COURIER STAFF REPORT
sports@madisoncourier.com

Nora Miodrag and Alex Maldeney each scored wins for Hanover in a dual swim meet at Franklin on Saturday.

Miodrag, a sophomore from Louisville, won the women's 100-yard breaststroke in 1:14.64 while Maldeney, a senior from Fort Wayne, won the men's 50-yard freestyle in 22.35.

Franklin swept the meet, winning the men's 214-46 and the women's 201-45.

Hanover returns to action on Saturday when it hosts Lindsey Wilson at Southwestern High School. The meet will be one of three at home for the Panthers, who will host Anderson on Jan. 11 and Transylvania on Jan. 24.

Hanover competes in the Transylvania Invitational on Dec. 7-8 and travels to Clermont, Florida, Dec. 28 through Jan. 4.

who stepped on the field for us played big."

The Panthers went on to score two more times while the defense continued its stranglehold on a Rose offense that entered the game averaging 34.9 points per game on an average of 435 yards per game. Hanover upped its lead to 35-6 near the midway mark of the third quarter on a 44-yard pass down the middle of the field from Wezensky to Blestein and Coane wrapped up his day in the fourth quarter with his third touchdown run, a 50-yard sprint that was followed by Steurer's sixth extra point for a 42-6 lead.

Rose managed to end its scoring drought late in the fourth quarter on a 23-yard pass from Eric Morris to Da'Jon Bonnee but with just 55 seconds left, Hanover went into victory formation on the next series to officially clinch its spot atop the HCAC.

Hanover finished the day with 433 yards on offense with Coane accounting for 222 yards on his own. The junior rushed for 201 yards on 22 carries with three touchdowns and had a score and 21 yards on two receptions. Wezensky was 15-of-26 passing for 192 yards with three touchdowns and an interception. The junior's top target on the day, Blestein, had three catches for 65 yards to go with his two touchdown grabs. Walt Ballinger fell a yard short of a 100-yard rushing day with 99 yards on 12 carries.

Defense limited Rose to just 224 yards on offense and tormented quarterback Andrew Dion, who was held to a 8-of-29 passing for only 70 yards and an interception. Wight had 80 yards and a touchdown on 20 carries but only 30 yards after the first quarter. Kyle Treber led Hanover with 12 total tackles and Devonte Hardiman picked up a sack. Terrell Anderson Jr. and Cody Horner were each credited with an interception.

"We weren't super clean on offense today but we found enough things to exploit their (Rose) defense," Theobald said. "Offensive line and our run game did a great job and our defense was superb. Our linebackers were great and we controlled Rose's top targets and we slowed their runs down. I'm just really happy for this group."

Hanover closes out the regular season Saturday at home against Franklin in the annual Victory Bell game and then prepares for the postseason. The NCAA Playoff selection show will be Sunday at 5:30 p.m. in Indianapolis.

"She's very unassuming," Jones said of Nall. "She comes in and works hard every day and that is why she is getting the accolades. She's a great teammate and has had a lot of success as both a teammate and captain for us."

But the 5-foot-10 forward will have a variety of teammates to help guide on both ends of the floor.

Also back are a trio of senior guards in Kristin Mills (5.2 ppg), Madison graduate Katie Hartman (8.8 ppg) and Switzerland County graduate Brooke Todd (5.5 ppg) who combined to average nearly 20 points a game for a Hanover team that averaged 71.7 points last year. Junior forward Savannah Courtney (3.7 ppg) returns after starting in five of the team's 27 games a year ago and the veteran group will provide not only production on the floor, but leadership as an inexperienced bench looks to improve as the season progresses.

Jones said it's hard to believe that local products Hartman and Todd, are both entering their final seasons as Panthers.

"It goes by very fast," Jones said. "Feels like just yesterday that both were starting their careers here at Hanover but here they are getting ready for their senior seasons. I can't say enough about these two as people and players. They have been such a big part of our program and have been on the floor since they got here. They work hard every day and have been great stewards of Hanover. I really encourage the local community to come out and support these two."

Hanover will play its entire non-conference slate on the road. The Panthers open the season at the Tip Off Classic in Holland, Michigan, against St. Mary's (Ind.) on Friday and close out the classic on Saturday against No. 6 Hope (Mich.).

Hanover Men

For the third-straight year, Hanover captured the men's HCAC Tournament title en route to a third consecutive trip to the NCAA Tournament that saw a first round loss to Wheaton.

The Panthers finished 21-7 and 14-4 in the HCAC in 2018-19 and head coach Jon Miller knows the potential lies for a fourth-straight conference title and NCAA berth.

"Our team culture is really good right now," Miller said. "Guys were consistent in their approach to getting their bodies stronger and we have a number of guys who really like to be in the gym and working on their games. Our early practices have been pretty good overall."

The Panthers will be without the services of All-American point guard Cam Fails, who graduated after a senior season that saw him named HCAC Player of the Year after averaging 20.9 points per game. But while that loss is certainly a tough one to replace, a slew of veterans are set to take on the load left by Fails to lead the way for Hanover.

"Even though we have a lot of veteran players we really have started from square one in terms of trying to figure out how this team can be at its best," Miller said. "We are trying to figure all that out right now. Our seniors have been a part of three-straight conference championships so they sort of know how that whole deal needs to come together."

Among the returnees, junior guard and New Albany graduate Isaac Hibbard returns as the team's leading scorer, averaging 11.5 points per game last season. Joining him in the backcourt are seniors Logan Ratts (2.4 ppg) and Blake Robertson (4.9 ppg) as veterans who will highlight the frontcourt and see their roles increase.

Senior forward Kevin Williams is back after averaging 9.8 points per game along with classmate Ryan Cloncs, who started in 10 games and averaged 6.9 points per game. The Panthers also return four sophomores and welcome to the fold three freshmen who will look to compete for minutes on the floor.

"Our returning guys should have a pretty good feel for how we want them to play and what our expectations are," Miller said. "Like every year we will have to figure some things out but I am hoping we can rely on the experience that a number of our guys have gained over the past few years. I expect us to be a really unselfish group that competes very hard. We will need some guys to step forward and assert themselves and I think we have some options there."

Hanover opens the season on Tuesday at Spalding (Ky.).

BRIDGE

ONE PIECE OF DATA INFLUENCES THE PLAY

James Allen, who was an English philosophy and self-help author, wrote, "The more tranquil a man becomes, the greater is his success, his influence, his power for good. Calmness of mind is one of the beautiful jewels of wisdom."

At the bridge table, staying calm is much better than getting in a lather. But you also need to think straight and act accordingly, not just do the first thing that comes into your mind.

In today's deal, for example, how should South play in six spades after West leads a diamond?

North's two-no-trump response was the Jacoby Forcing Raise: four or more spades and at least game-going strength. South employed Roman Key Card Blackwood to learn that his partner had either one ace and the trump king or two aces.

There is a potential heart loser and a problem in the trump suit. If you have no heart loser, you have a safety play in trumps. (What is that?) If you have heart loser, though, you must play the trumps for no loser. (How?)

Since the heart suit influences the trump suit, declarer should test it first. After winning trick one on the board, declarer should immediately play a heart to his queen.

Here, the finesse wins, so South can afford one spade loser, but not two. The right play is to cash the spade ace. If nothing good happens, declarer plays a card to the dummy and leads a spade toward his queen. However, when the singleton king drops, he is home.

If the heart finesse had lost, South would have taken the spade finesse, hoping that East had king-doubleton.

Understanding when a family member has narcissism

Annie Lane

Dear Annie: I am writing in response to the letter from "Concerned Care-Daughter," who said she was approaching caregiver burnout. It sounds to me like she is very empathic, and her older sister may have some narcissist traits. Narcissistic traits include being dismissive of other people's points of view and being very controlling.

My mother had many strong narcissistic traits, and I had to learn to set boundaries the hard way. I've found healing through understanding by reading books and watching videos on this topic, including on YouTube. I might not have a professional background in this, but I have learned a great deal.

Narcissists believe they are special and think they know more than others do. When problems come along, they blame other people because they don't make mistakes (or so they believe). They can be ridiculously defensive. They cannot say phrases like, "You make a good point," or "Thanks for the input," or "I was wrong," or "Can you help me understand?" Instead, they mismanage anger and can have temper tantrums, or they can be passive-aggressive if you don't agree with them. They don't care how you feel, or how or why you prioritize things the way that you do. Narcissists will wear out their relationships. They're exasperating and frustrating to take care of, so they have a lot of broken, strained and difficult relationships, especially later in life.

Empaths, on the other hand, intuitively pick up on other people's feelings. They can deeply understand another person's point of view. They have a passion to be helpful; they are sensitive and are deeply moved by beauty. They love to help the underdog. Empaths tend to be idealists. One of their favorite phrases is, "Why can't we all just get along?"

Unfortunately, the narcissist tends to be exploitative and highly controlling. And when they meet an empath, they can think, "Now what can I do with that person that's going to make me feel better and will help me?" They can try to take advantage of the empath's desire to help people.

So it's important for the empath to learn to set boundaries with a narcissist. It won't change the behavior of the narcissist, but the empaths can learn to protect themselves from that behavior and not have the words of a narcissist carry much weight. By doing this, empaths can practice emotional detachment from narcissists, unhooking from caring what they think. They should not let the narcissist define who they are. It's OK to decide how much to do as a caretaker and stick with it. I find phrases like, "That doesn't work for me," and, "Well, it's not going to work out, is it," very helpful. — Empathic Daughter of a Narcissist

Dear Daughter of a Narcissist: I am very sorry that you had a mother like that. But talk about making lemonade out of a lemon. You healed yourself by understanding your mother's way of being and all the while setting boundaries to protect yourself. I commend you fully. Thank you for your letter. I hope it helps other people dealing with narcissists in their lives.
